

A close-up photograph of a cluster of tomatoes on a vine. Most of the tomatoes are bright red and appear ripe, while one tomato in the lower right is still green and unripe. The background is a soft-focus green, suggesting a garden or greenhouse setting.

Plant Physiology[®]

February 2016 • Volume 170 • Number 2

www.plantphysiol.org

A γ Subunit of Heterotrimeric G-Proteins Affects Tomato Morphology